See Scant Hope For Early Ending Of Steel Strike

Sixth Day Of Huge Strike Finds No Change In Paralyzing Situation

FABRICATING PLANTS ARE "PUT IN MIDDLE"

By JAMES L. KILGILLEN
U. S. Staff Correspondent

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 26.—

No way seemed open today for an early ending of the nationwide strike of 700,000 steel workers.

The situation today, sixth day of the paralyzing walkout, was "status quo," with labor and industry still 3½ cents apart on the wage issue and both sides refusing to budge a penny.

Labor will accept President Truman's suggestion of an 18½ cents an hour pay boost for the steel workers. Industry says a 15 cents an hour raise is as high as it can afford to go.

No Developments

The great array of reporters congregated in Pittsburgh, "steel capital of the nation," was completely stymied in its search for news developments.

There weren't any. All that press and radio reporters knew was that, as time wore on, conditions were growing worse and that more and more dependent industries were closing down, throwing many additional men into idleness.

The strike was peaceful, in fact one of the most orderly in history. Philip Murray, CIO president and leader of the Steel Workers Union, maintained a poker-face demeanor as the strike dragged on. He was his usual casual, unperturbed self. He gave the impression that things were going all right.

He promised the reporters an in-

PA NEWC OBSERVES

One of Pa Newc's family noted a sign of approaching spring when he observed a North Hill boy carrying a large blue kite while on his way home from a store.

Fox hunters were busy in Mahoning township areas around Edinburg today. Pa. Newc is informed. Several foxes have been shot in that sector recently, it was added.

Just one week from today and groundhog day will be rolling into our midst again. Close watch will be kept on the abode of several of the traditional weather prognosticators on that date, Pa. Newc learns.

Pa Newc is in receipt of the following communication: "As I was reading The New Castle News this evening, I noticed you are waiting for someone to report having seen the first robin. On Wednesday, January 3, as I was cleaning windows, I saw a robin in my front yard. He was hopping around merrily as if to say spring would soon be here."—Mrs. John Schotsch, Wampum.

Reports have been received by Postmaster William R. Hanna, chairman of the Lawrence County Chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, which is now having its annual fund raising campaign through the March of Dimes, that several of the containers which had been put out to receive the contributions of the public have been stolen. One sort of has the feeling that a person who would not give a dime to this worthy cause, is not a very nice spirited citizen, but the one who would steal the contributions of others to this movement is about as low as they come.

In the hats off department, Pa Newc commends a local citizen who retrieved one of the familiar "March of Dimes" banks from the hands of a would-be "meat thief" of the day. Friday, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, the gentleman was standing in the business house when he noticed a youth approach one of the banks, quickly insert it under his coat, but the alert citizen gave chase for some distance until the exhausted thief threw down the can and slipped away. Although the thief got away the can intact was returned to its original spot.

In spite of all the talk about dressing up the high school gals, Pa Newc took notice this morning that the Saturday crowd of young shoppers were clothed mostly in straight coats, short skirts, head scarves, bobby sox and flat shoes—the same things they've been wearing for the past couple of years. It's not so easy, the dresser-uppers have learned, to wipe out institutions as deeply rooted as are sweaters, scarves and bobby sox.

Lewis' Return To A.F. of L. Expected To Aid Drive For Increased Strength

By PHILLIPS J. PECK
U. S. Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—AFL strategists counted today on the man who built the CIO to use his "organizing genius" in a campaign to restore the federation to undisputed dominance in the American labor movement.

They welcomed the re-affiliation of John L. Lewis with the federation as a powerful spearhead in the AFL's unrelenting competition with the CIO—which in a few short years claims almost as many union members as its half-century-old rival.

The AFL boasts approximately seven million members, while the CIO is not far behind.

One veteran AFL leader was frank to admit the organization "anticipates" that the bushy-browed boss of more than a half million coal miners will be able to proselytize in the ranks of the CIO.

MIAMI, Jan. 26.—The return of John L. Lewis to the American Federation of Labor today may kill the Congress of Industrial Organization.

Members of the AFL executive council, expressing this belief, appeared hopeful that Lewis will swing scores of CIO unions over to the AFL in the same manner that he magnetized so many away.

They frankly think that admission of Lewis and his 600,000 United Mine Workers of America will be the straw that breaks the camel's back in the CIO and will end the schism in labor.

Expect Workers To Return

The Brewery Workers Union, for one, is expected to return to the AFL within 90 days, following the example of Lewis and his miners and the thousands of craftsman in his long-disputed District Fifty.

If the brewery workers come back as council members anticipate, they will end a seven-year divorce from AFL and add their 50,000 members to the organization.

Negotiations for the return of the brewery workmen already are under way.

As they awaited the arrival of Lewis to assume his position as a councilman and thirteenth vice president of the AFL, the executive council, one by one, assured news-

Says Moon Contact

To Speed Defense
Against A-Bomb

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(INS)—A navy research laboratory official expressed belief today that radar contact with the moon will speed development of a defense against the atomic bomb.

This statement was made by silver-haired Dr. A. Hoyt Taylor, chief consultant for electronics at the naval research laboratory.

Taylor, also a former president of the Institute of Radio Engineers, asserted:

"The things we learn in 'shoot the moon' should be a help in working out a defense against the atom bomb."

Taylor's prediction was backed by him made in 1928 when he stated that radar could span the distance between the earth and the moon.

Japanese Request

For Extension Of Fishing Rejected

TOKYO, Jan. 26.—(INS)—General MacArthur's headquarters turned down today a Japanese request for extension of fishing areas.

The Japanese government advanced the request on the grounds that approved fishing areas near the Japanese home island were unable to supply food demands.

Observers pointed out, however, that the request may have been the opening move in a sly campaign to regain Japan's farflung pre-war fishing empire which was part of Nippon's espionage network.

Appetite Fails—SUICIDES

WILKES-BARRE, Pa., Jan. 26.—(INS)—Deputy Luzerne County Coroner Joseph Shuffa reported today that Leon Sidias, 49, of Glen-Iron, had hanged himself because his appetite failed after an operation.

The deputy coroner said Sidias, who had been released from a hospital earlier this week, became discouraged when he could not eat his favorite dishes prepared by his wife.

Motors Wage Dispute 'Break' May Be Near

BULLETIN 1:40 P. M.

DETROIT, Jan. 26.—(INS)—The Ford Motor Company signed a wage agreement with the UAW-CIO today calling for a wage increase of 18 cents an hour.

Terms will be submitted to the union membership for ratification.

The settlement was announced jointly by John Bugas, Ford industrial relations director, and Richard T. Leonard, chief of the UAW Ford department.

DETROIT, Jan. 26.—(INS)—United Automobile Workers, CIO, wage negotiations gained momentum this afternoon as the Ford Motor company called a special meeting and union leaders awaited the arrival of President R. J. Thomas.

Observers indicated that Thomas reported hurried departure from Washington to take personal charge of Chrysler UAW wage discussions may result in a "break."

Newsman were hurriedly summoned to a Ford conference. No meeting was scheduled until Tuesday.

Richard Leonard, UAW director of the Ford division, was called back from a scheduled trip to head the emergency discussions.

General Short

Names Officers
In 'Buck Passing'

Specifically Mentions Gen. Marshall, Stimson And General Staff Officers

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(INS)—Gen. Walter C. Short made his charge of Washington "buck passing" in the Pearl Harbor disaster specific today by naming Gen. George C. Marshall, former Secretary of War, and General Staff officers.

He told the Pearl Harbor committee that when he accused the War department of making him the "scapegoat" for the 1941 attack he had in mind the general staff in particular because they had the primary responsibility.

Names Are Given

Under questioning by Sen. Ferguson (R-Mich.), the specifically named Marshall, then Army chief of staff, Lt. Gen. Leonard E. Cress, former war plans chief, and Maj. Gen. Sherman Miles, 1941 intelligence chief.

Short incited Stimson insofar as "policy matters" were concerned. He said he would not expect Stimson to be aware of technical things.

Manila, Jan. 26.—President Sergio Osmeña was drawing up plans today to honor outstanding American war heroes of the Philippine campaign by naming certain boulevards, parks, highways and bridges after them.

International News Service learned that the Philippine president may change the name of Manila's leading thoroughfare from "España" to "MacArthur boulevard" to honor Gen. Douglas MacArthur, Osmeña declared.

The Philippines want to honor the great heroes who did so much for us. Names like MacArthur, Kenney, Whitehead, Krueger, Colin Kelly and many others must be perpetuated as historic examples for future generations. Their deeds live (Continued on Page Two)

Hold Nine-Year-Old

Boy For Slaying
13-Year-Old Youth

FAIRMONT, W. Va., Jan. 26.—(INS)—West Virginia state police today were investigating the shotgun death of a 13-year-old youth who was slain by a brother as he lay in bed.

Johnnie Ramage, nine, was taken into custody and turned over to juvenile authorities after he went to the barn and told his father Nick Ramage:

"You'd better go into the house. Wayne just took a couple of aspirin tablets and died."

The father rushed into the house and found Wayne dead in bed with half his face torn away by the shotgun blast.

Later Johnnie told police he went into the room, loaded the shotgun and then walked to the bed, aimed it at Wayne's head and fired.

No motive was advanced for the killing.

CORAOPOLIS, Pa., Jan. 26.—(INS)—A $100,000 apartment house fire which routed more than 60 persons from their beds was brought under control today by firemen from Coraopolis and surrounding towns.

Police chief T. J. Cardman said there were no casualties.

RADAR CONTACTS THE MOON

Immeasurable vistas of science appear open through the disclosure that the Army signal Corps has made radar contact with the moon.

Lower photo shows radar antenna at the Evans laboratory in Belmar, N. J., are being aimed at the moon, a mean distance estimated at 238,857 miles. Radar pulses, traveling with the speed of light—186,000 miles per second—were sent out at five second intervals and reflected from the moon to the earth in about two and a half seconds. Top photo, shows the radar screen on which these impulses registered.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(INS)—The special American mission to attend the inauguration of President-elect Getulio Vargas (D-Brazil) today, shortly after 9 a. m.

The mission is headed by Charles H. McGowan, former mayor of New York, who will attend the ceremonies at Rio de Janeiro as the personal representative of President Truman with the rank of ambassador.

Just before stepping into the big transport plane McGowan said:

"I look forward with great pleasure to my mission. It's gratifying that an election was held in Brazil in keeping with the best traditions of democracy and that the results were cheerfully accepted by the entire population. That augurs well for the future. Naturally relations between the United States and Brazil have always been as close and cordial as my mission is not only delightful but an easy one."

It is possible that the party will arrive in New Castle sometime late this afternoon or tonight.

At approximately this afternoon 5 P. M., Haines accused slayer of Jean Edgar of Edinburg City had not arrived at the county jail. He is supposed to be somewhere between New Castle and Toledo, O., in the custody of District Attorney Leroy K. Donaldson, County Detective Charles Ross and a state policeman.

DIRECTS MEAT PLANTS FROM CHICAGO OFFICE

Chicago, Jan. 26.—(INS)—Gayle G. Armstrong, who became czar of the nation's strike bound meat industry when the government seized packing plants at 12:01 a. m. maintained his office today far from any struck plant.

Armstrong, a Department of Agriculture official and New Mexico rancher, made his headquarters in the department's offices on Wabash street in downtown Chicago. As a result he did not have to decide whether he would cross CIO picket lines.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—(INS)—The CIO Packinghouse Workers Union announced today that it was urging its striking members to return to work Monday morning, January 28, in the nation's strike-bound meat-packing plants.

Its announcement was made just 12 hours after the government had stepped in and seized the plants of the industry.

When the government first seized the plants, CIO members defied the government by maintaining their picket lines.

But at noon, the CIO union, which called the strike on January 16, issued a formal statement saying that its 193,000 striking members would go back to work Monday.

Atomic Bomb Test Observers Will See Little

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(INS)—Rep. Vinson (D-Ga.), chairman of the house naval affairs committee, said today the atomic bomb tests next May and July will be a "big show" but observers will be lucky if they see anything.

Commented Vinson:

The effects of the bomb will be so great that observers will have to be stationed at a great distance from the test.

Byrnes was reported preoccupied with relations with Russia and other European states. He had no chance to confer with former mayor, Fiorello H. LaGuardia, of New York, who took off early in the morning to look to attend, as Mr. Truman's personal representative, the inauguration of president-elect DuRoi in Brazil.

LaGuardia Departs

LaGuardia departed with ambassador to Brazil, Adolf A. Berle, Jr., military and naval aides.

The importance of the United States attaches to DuRoi's inauguration was emphasized by a White House announcement that the newly-commissioned aircraft carrier Franklin D. Roosevelt, the most modern carrier of the U. S. fleet, will also be present.

Byrnes himself was reported to regard the question of good neighbor policy for the moment subordinate to issues in Europe and the Far East.

Conflicting Dates

The secretary is expected to remain in Washington until the convening of a formal peace conference for Italy and the satellite states of Romania, Hungary, Bulgaria and Finland, scheduled for late April in Paris.

IF THE PARIS PEACE MEETING CONFLICTS with the projected Rio de Janeiro conference of American foreign ministers, now scheduled to be held between March 15 and April 15, Byrnes is expected to choose Paris instead of Rio.

Interview today but he was careful to avoid indicating that he had anything important to "break".

Industry has no really authoritative spokesman in Pittsburgh so it was impossible for newsmen to get an accurate line on how big business viewed developments.

Small Concerns Present Protest

Murray meanwhile was engaged in a sort of sideshow with small steel fabricating industries.

Fifty-six of these small concerns have been contending that the CIO will not bargain with them separately from "Big Steel". They say this fact has put them "in the middle" and that a great many of their employees are forced into idleness as a result.

Murray countered by declaring it isn't so. He said the union has at all times—and still is—ready to bargain with any struck companies.

The little fellows—these steel fabricators—employ 50,000 workers in the Pittsburgh steel district alone.

There are about 700 such non-basic steel concerns throughout the country, employing 350,000 workers.

Spokesman for these relatively small companies is the Tri-State Industrial Association, which has been shooting at Murray.

Negotiate Individually?

The association today asserted that these small fabricating concerns are confronted with the prospect of having to pay higher prices for the steel they use as well as higher wages to their employees, and still be held to frozen prices for their own products. They emphatically contend they are dissimilar from basic steel in every respect. The association, in its latest statement, said:

"We hope that these union representatives who have offered to meet with some of the member companies will not again be armed only with an ultimatum of 18 1/2 cents, or else."

"These companies are pleased to meet with union representatives who, we hope, will have the authority to negotiate with each company individually in a real sense."

"If these representatives are in a position, officially, to consider the particular problems that will be involved in settling wage differences that vary with each company, results can be expected."

Murray had nothing to say concerning the suggestion of Benjamin F. Fairless, president of the U. S. Steel Corporation, that President Truman call a conference in Washington of experienced executives from representative companies involved in strikes to discuss with them "what kind of wage increase the economy of this country can endure" without incurring inflation.

That suggestion from industry seemingly has failed to touch fire inssofar as either labor or government is concerned.

Their lunch consisted of minestrone soup, fried codfish or spareribs, sauerkraut, cauliflower, spinach, pineapple cake, canned pears and coffee.

The strains of "There comes the bride" pulled over the Argentinian public address system as the women and children trooped up the gangplank. The voyagers joined in the chorus.

Stassen Contends Truman Is Lacking In Real Leadership

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(INS)—Harold E. Stassen, possible contender for the Republican presidential nomination in 1948, maintained today that the "Truman administration had failed to exercise leadership" in the present labor crisis.

The former governor of Minnesota suggested that President Truman call a conference of labor management and leaders in the nation's economy to solve the problems, Stassen said.

"We must exercise leadership of cooperation and a broad understanding of the harmony essential for the welfare of all. The President must never make any specific recommendations, unless they are acceptable to both sides. The alternative is a stoppage of industry."

EXPECT LEWIS TO SWING C. I. O. UNIONS BACK

men that the 66-year-old UMW boss will receive an all-out welcome to establish unity.

William Green, president of the AFL, seemed in a similar frame of mind when he welcomed the return of the UMW is a step to wipe out division and establish complete unity within the ranks of organized labor.

Union leaders recalled that in 1935, when Lewis first broke with the AFL, he could not agree on organizing workers by crafts rather than by industry and also rejected the idea that labor should be non-partisan politically.

Lewis suddenly became the major domo of the newly formed CIO, taking nine AFL unions with him into the baby organization.

This move plunged American labor into a full fledged civil war marked by hot-blooded feuds between Lewis and AFL's President Green.

Quits C.I.O. In 1942

Lewis withdrew his UMW from the CIO in 1942 after a squabble with Philip Murray the man he had made his president, and in recent years had sought to come back to the fold.

His return was consummated yesterday when the executive committee unanimously accepted the UMW and elected Lewis a vice president and membership in the council.

The action fulfilled terms laid down by Lewis in a letter of application dated last January 12. He demanded membership in the council, and conceded that the polyglot unions of his District 50 were to abide by jurisdictional rulings of the AFL.

Green dismissed all questions concerning a possible battle for power between himself and Lewis with the assertion that he expects to remain the AFL's president indefinitely.

against making an overt act and could have shown a full mobilization of Army forces on Hawaii it is "quite probable" that the approaching Jap force might have "turned back."

If the Japanese had learned Hawaii was prepared for anything, Short added, they "probably" have been a very excellent chance they would have turned back because they would have felt they would take heavy losses.

"Surprise was the only opportunity they had," he said.

What "Scapagoat?" Ferguson asked Short just what he meant by the term "Scapagoat."

The retired general replied: "Someone they saddled the blame on to get it off themselves."

"Someone had to take the blame, certain people you have named in Washington were to blame, so they shifted it to you?" Ferguson asked.

"That's exactly what I wanted to convey," Short affirmed.

Short also revealed that when the late Secretary of Navy Knox inspected his Army headquarters following the attack he was "so impressed" he ordered the Navy to move into an underground headquarters adjoining the Army. Knox, Short said under questioning, did not indicate he was dissatisfied with the Army set-up.

tanks, and strengthened the CIO's defiant stand, particularly in the San Francisco Bay area.

Deflection From C. I. O.

However, the CIO soon found it also was unable to control a completely sold-out front CIO pickets were withdrawn from an Armour company plant employing 1,700 at National City, Ill. Jerome Scaglione, head of the CIO local there, said the men would return to work at government call. Scaglione added:

"We're not going to fight the government."

But on all other fronts, Chicago, Kansas City, Omaha, Milwaukee and other cities, CIO pickets held their lines.

Whether the war department would be ordered to furnish troops to enforce the Smith-Connally act which prohibits picketing of government plants was not known.

Taking over the struck plants for the government at the 12:01 a. m. deadline set by President Truman in the seizure order was the U. S. Department of Agriculture. In all, 134 meat packing plants of 19 companies were seized.

In ordering the seizure in an attempt to halt the 11-day-old strike, Mr. Truman had promised that the agriculture department would have the backing of the war department, if necessary.

Seizure Peaceful

Actual seizure took place without any show of force. Gayle C. Armstrong, department of agriculture official designated as government operator of the plants merely notified packing company officials that they were operating for the government at 12:01 a. m. No one then was put in or out of the plants saying that the government had taken over.

Picketing of the plant-factories was watched without demonstration by CIO pickets.

The pickets were acting under orders from Lewis J. Clark, president of the United Packing House Workers of the CIO. Clark announced yesterday that he and the 192,000 members would continue their strike despite government seizure.

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—(INS)—Lewis J. Clark, president of the CIO's packing house workers, which is conducting the nationwide meat strike, announced today that he would hold a news conference at 12:35 p. m. CST.

A spokesman for the union leader remarked:

"The conference will be worth while."

The conference will follow by two hours a meeting of the strike strategy committee of the union. The meeting was called to consider a communication from Secretary of Agriculture Claude P. Anderson.

The letter urged the union to would back CIO demands for wage increases, if costs are recommended by a fact finding panel now considering the controversy.

From the beginning of 1941 through February 1945, there were more than 6,500,000 marriages in the United States.

LEWIS RETURN IS EXPECTED TO AID A. F. OF L. CAMPAIGN

claimed the CIO auto workers, rubber workers, and mine, mill and smelter unions as fertile fields for "raiding" by the UMW president who left the AFL 10 years ago to organize the nation's big mass production industries.

In recent months several auto worker local unions have passed resolutions asking Lewis to take them back under his wing.

The 65-year-old mine chief, who once boldly opposed the late Samuels Gompers in an unsuccessful bid for the presidency of the AFL, is credited with having many friends and followers in the CIO—men who followed him in the bloody "little steel" strike and auto sit-downs of 1937.

Recently Lewis was urged to head up a third labor movement of independent unions. He may win some of these for the AFL.

Hopes To Benefit

The AFL also hopes to benefit from the new organization work which Lewis carries on under the banner of his catholic-an District 50 once jurisdictional disputes are ironed out. He will have a hand in settling the latter as a member of the AFL executive council.

The District 50 unit recently defeated the CIO maritime union in an election among Philadelphia harbor workers, won a vote on the Long Island Railroad against the non-AFL Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, and announced its intention to go after New York transit workers.

Lewis is planning an intense campaign in the chemical and plastics industries, where great postwar expansion is expected.

In Harmony

The leader of the United Mine Workers, the union in which AFL President William Green and CIO President Philip Murray cut their labor teeth, will be in complete harmony with the AFL's opposition to the world federation of trade unions.

The AFL has bitterly assailed the CIO for its sponsorship of the WFTU because of the presence of the actual scene, perhaps 25 miles away. They may even be over the horizon. I don't think they'll see much."

Vinson added that nevertheless, it was important that the tests be witnessed by members of congress, scientists and the press, in addition to navy and army observers.

He explained:

"After the test, they will be able to examine the ships and see for themselves the bomb's effect upon them."

The tests will be made on 67 American, Japanese and German ships at Bikini atoll, Marshall Islands, in the mid-Pacific, where the water is sufficiently shallow to permit divers to examine the wrecks, if necessary.

Do YOUR CHILDREN'S questions sometimes put you on a spot?

At a certain age it seems as if every sentence begins with a "why."

There's a simple answer to this question, though. The water always comes out of the faucet because of the constant alertness of the men and women who work in your water company. Night and day they are on the job . . . to treat the water so that it's always safe to use . . . to keep the pumps sending a steady flow to your home . . . to inspect and repair the network of pipes under your city streets.

Every Water Company employee takes very seriously the responsibility that is his in keeping your water supply pure, palatable, and plentiful at all times.

High Price of Secrecy

While the Pearl Harbor inquiry has been carrying on lately in the shadow of more dramatic developments on the labor front, it still ranks as one of the most important hearings of the times and it is still producing testimony which should command the attention of the American people.

No one, for instance, can read General Short's statement without feeling more convinced than ever that responsibility for the disaster of December 7, 1941, did not rest solely with Army and Navy officers on the spot.

Like other evidence which previously has been presented at the inquiry, General Short's declaration was to the effect that Washington had withheld information and instructions from him which would have enabled him to make ready for the Japanese attack. He admitted that he did not have at his command the resources needed to prevent all losses, but at least his forces could have made a fight of it and saved not only many American lives and some of the naval vessels which were destroyed.

Both Admiral Kimmel and General Short have now stated on the witness stand that they were kept in ignorance of what was happening in the Pacific in those fateful days of 1941. There is no reason to doubt their word.

Moreover, there will be few Americans so cynical as to think that two high-ranking officers of the Kimmel-Short type, men mindful of the traditions of their services as well as of the dangers to their country, would not have gone decisively into action if they had been given the slightest warning of Japan's exact purposes.

Senators Over 70

A year or more has elapsed since Thomas Hart of Connecticut swapped his admiral's epaulettes for a senatorial toga. What has happened since seems to prove that an old sea dog can be taught new tricks for the old admiral has been at least a fifty-fifty sort of senator. But it is apparent that any hope of changing his habit of speaking his mind undiplomatically is forlorn.

Senator Hart has announced his decision not to run again in a manner that has set some of his dignified colleagues on their ears. He explained that he will be 69 this summer and that another term would "carry him well into the seventies and that is an age of declining powers for nearly all men."

— The honest but inept old—by his own admission—ex-admiral then added insult to injury by remarking that "for years it has been true that men of too advanced age have held seats in the United States Senate."

The reaction of his colleagues to this heresy was as sharp as if he had trodden violently on their toes. For while Senator Hart at 68 may be well past the Navy's retiring age, he is a relative spring chicken in senatorial ranks. Senators from 70 to 80 rumbled testily that they feel as young as ever and some of them intimated that they were spry enough to run again, no matter how doddering Senator Hart thought he was.

There are, in truth, some rare men whose vitality and usefulness do not seem to be impaired by age. But it must be admitted that some senators hang on to their seats too long. Senator Carter Glass of Virginia has not been in his seat for years. Presumably his check is mailed to him. It might be a good thing for the Senate and the country if more senators would follow Hart's example and step out in favor of younger men. But it must be admitted that among the comparative youngsters in the Senate, there are none that are particularly hot.

'Atomic' Hunting

The science of large scale hunting is still in its infancy, judging by the campaign launched against crows in the state of Kansas. It seems the Kansas fish and game commission has declared war on the cawing tribe and hopes to bump off 1,000,000 of them.

It is contended they not only destroy crops to appease their voracious appetites, but follow wild ducks northward and consume the eggs and young ducklings. The state's objective sounds tremendous until it is revealed that two expeditions resulted in killing 350,000 of the birds, 200,000 of them in one large scale bombing of a rookery.

As every rural schoolboy knows, crows spend their days foraging and return together to their roosts in large numbers at night. Lee Larabee, chairman of the Kansas fish and game commission, said that in bumping off 200,000 in one swoop, 400 homemade bombs were used in an area of 15,000 square yards. The bombs are made by packing buckshot around a stick of dynamite. They are set during the day when the crows are away and are exploded by electrical means at night when the birds, their crops well filled, are sawing wood in the treetops.

The crow, unlike the famous passenger pigeon, now extinct, actually benefited by the coming of Europeans to this country. It is believed that prehistorically it was confined to the open central parts of what is now the United States. It spread and multiplied with the advance of man's civilization and flourishes today from Mexico to Northern Canada.

The clearing and cultivation of the soil vastly increased the food supply of the crow and reduced its natural enemies. Being no stupid bird, it adapted itself easily to the new conditions it encountered and to whatever novel enemies it met. The crow is omnivorous and not only eats large numbers of insects but also possesses some value as a scavenger. But it has a strong affinity for planted kernels of corn, a fact which led to development of the scarecrow, an agricultural apparatus which probably did more for poetry than for farming.

It has been generally held that crows should not be exterminated but that their numbers should be kept under control. Judging by the plans of the Kansas commission, they must exist in myriad numbers in the Sunflower state, along with jackrabbits and grasshoppers.

It is said that the meek shall inherit the earth, but they had better hurry or Joe Stalin will beat 'em to it.

The public seems to have become reconcined that what goes up must come down unless it is prices of stocks.

WASHINGTON CALLING

Unorganized Public Is Caught In Middle

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—In his radio talk, Benjamin F. Fairless of the United States Steel Corporation disclosed an extremely interesting fact that has, perhaps, a more important bearing on the whole wage-price-strike controversy than it seemed to have in the context of the Fairless speech.

First he said that the administration in Washington had indicated a willingness to grant a $4-a-ton increase in the price of steel. That had been known before, although it was never officially stated. Then, in explaining why he had raised his wage offer to a 15-cents-an-hour increase, Fairless said:

"This new offer was made after I was informed from Washington by a high government official that the government was willing to sanction some price increase over the promised $4 a ton if the labor dispute could be settled."

This high government official was Reconversion Director John W. Snyder. In effect, Snyder was offering the steel industry almost any price increase it only the companies would agree to grant a wage increase which would settle the strike.

At the time all this was going on, there was a strong suspicion that Snyder was doing just that—offering to increase the ante when management seemed to be reluctant. Unfortunately, the bait was held out in such a way that no promise of good behavior was extracted in return.

One who was most suspicious, at the time the bargaining was going on, was OPA Administrator Chester Bowles. Bowles had been assured that no price increase over the $4 would be made. He had held out for no more than $2.50 a ton.

The Fairless statement must, therefore, have been extremely interesting reading for the man who almost alone in the administration has fought to hold the price line. As Bowles knows very well, the price line cannot be held if behind his back, such free-wheeling offers are to be made.

Nor can he afford to stay on his present job if there is no reality in it. The possibility that he will be forced to step out cannot be overlooked as the dilemma of the administration deepens.

Fairless speaks of the danger of an "inflationary spiral." Yet he apparently was perfectly willing to accept the $4 a ton price increase, or even more, if only the wage increase could be kept down to what he felt justified in paying.

This has a familiar sound. When Senator Taft of Ohio spoke before the golden anniversary congress of the National Association of Manufacturers in December, he argued for inflation. That, at any rate, was the net effect of his curious speech, which was so roundly applauded by his business audience.

Taft argued that we already had all the elements of inflation, including wage increases far beyond the rise in the cost of living. No matter what you do, if these conditions exist, he said, your prices in the end are going to have to conform or "there will be nobody in business in the United States and there will be no recovery after the war."

Controlled Inflation
He was arguing against the present system of price controls and for a kind of controlled inflation. An increase in retail prices of, say, 10 per cent would do no one any harm, the senator from Ohio proclaimed, to the accompaniment of loud cheers from the NAM.

The NAM has come out for removal of all wartime controls, not later than Feb. 1. Many business men argue for the need to "bake" our inflation and get it over with. They apparently believe firmly that that is the only way to get full production.

Fairless, therefore, is rather a lonely figure in his concern over inflation. He is going against most of the spokesmen of business and industry.

What if the government had granted a $5 or even a $6-a-ton increase in steel? And what if labor had settled for Fairless' offer of 15 cents an hour? That, I suppose, would not have been inflationary.

The unorganized public is caught in the middle of this inflation argument. Labor says one thing, management another. And the hard core of fact is lost sight of in the head-chargers in the dispute.

TEA TIME

I like laughter with my tea,
Smiles to lift my cup to me.
I want children telling me
All that they've been up to.

I would keep the children fed
Full as I am able.
I'd have jelly for their bread
Shimmering on the table.

I think ice cream, pall or brick,
Best as final course and thick.
If both plentiful and thick
Mary's chocolate sauce is.

Supper time needs more than tea.
Meat upon a platter.
Tasteless food would seem to me
Lacking childhood's chatter.

Good Men Appear

Unusually Scarce

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.

IT ought not to be used as an excuse to put unfit men into high public places, but undoubtedly there is a lot of truth in recent statements about the difficulties of inducing first-class men to accept administration jobs. There is nothing new about that, but in recent years it has become increasingly true.

DURING the war the late Mr. Roosevelt was able to draft a good many first-class men. He also drafted a good many third-class ones. The first-class fellows came down, worked hard, expected nothing, got nothing and are now out and back at their private jobs. Nothing short of another war would get them back to Washington. Many of the third-class ones are still around, clinging to the old payroll one way or another, on the various boards, bureaus and commissions which sustain the Government. It will take a pretty drastic use of the President's powers under the new Reorganization Act to reorganize them out of their jobs.

MR. TRUMAN's trouble is that the reluctance of the best men to come back forces him to turn to the poorer groups more often than he likes in order to fill some really major positions. This lays him open to the charge of putting in personal friends and inadequate men for political reasons. Undoubtedly he has done too much of that but so did most other Presidents and Mr. Truman is entitled to a fuller appreciation of the enhanced difficulty of getting really big men to take Government posts at the Capital. Any President would be up against the same thing. The increased difficulty in the way of financial reward or chance for making a reputation are simply not there. The whole business of Government has been cheapened in the last 13 years.

IT IS now just beginning to be realized that while this state of affairs at home is acutely embarrassing, the situation abroad is equally so. It used to be that the larger and the more important the British, the French, Italian, Russian, German, were all eagerly sought by men of wealth and standing. Usually these places went to outstanding contributors to party campaign funds. They were esteemed a great honor and there was keen competition for them. But that is no longer so. On the contrary, the President is hard pushed to get qualified men to succeed diplomats abroad anxious to return. These posts once so glamorous, have become undesirable to the type of men to whom they were customarily given. Take the case of the British ambassadorship. Until now this had always been the prize diplomatic post. For the rich and socially ambitious it was like going to Heaven. None such was ever known to decline. A good many have been deeply disappointed not to land it. But times are different now. Two extremely rich and inordinately socially ambitious men have declined it in the last three months.

Writer Urges Preservation Of White House
Stands Against Remodeling Of Old Structure
Early Occupants Of Building Are Recalled

By HELEN ESSARY
(Central Press Columnist)

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—The new plan to turn the White House "gentleman's house" in America into another union station is disturbing. The finest gentleman's house known as the "president's palace" when the republic was very young is in danger of having $1,650,000 spent on its left wing.

Anybody would know that this is a frightful sum, even in the highest-of-living days, to inflict on a mellowed old mansion. A mansion that began in 1792 as a $500 prize drawing by a young Irish architect, James Hoban of Dublin. Since that auspicious day and since another exciting day, a few months later, when George Washington, wearing a Masonic apron made especially for the occasion by Madame Lafayette, laid the cornerstone of the mansion, much history has washed over its walls. The "president's palace" has been belittled by many violent personalities. But up to this moment, it has withstood the ravages of experience. It has remained aloof and secure. Sure of the past and aware of its dignity and beauty. Somehow, it has managed to survive as a charming home and defy its modernizers.

Capital Once Small
But now a tidying-up wave has hit the old place. They've no idea who "they" are keep talking about 5,000 additional square feet of floor space to accommodate the president's office staff in shiny new rooms. When they talk about square feet it always seems so much worse than just feet. Also there is to be an auditorium to seat about 400 people at news conferences.

Good heavens! What has happened to the republic? Mr. John Adams, first president to occupy the "president's palace," came to the first seat of the United States government with his cabinet and all their clerks. There were 136 of them. Counting Mr. Adams and the head office boy. There were 40 houses in Washington then. Like a housing and light shortage. In fact, there wasn't any hotel. And (Continued on Page Seven)

The Parent Problem

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph. D.

REJECTED CHILDREN

You probably have been reading and hearing much about the "rejected child." There is the occasional child, of course, one or both of whose parents, or whose relatives and others, clearly show by their actions or inactions, state dislike of him or preference for his mother, sister, or playmate. Some writers seem to identify the "rejected child" with the child suffering from jealousy from the feeling he is not loved as others in his family, play group or school group.

It has seemed to me that "rejected child" is an unfortunate term since it is used with so wide latitude and is often not interpreted by the average person to mean what the expert means it had in mind.

Rejected Feeling
Even some experts seem to have curious, certainly impractical, notions about what may cause a child to feel rejected. For example, I recently heard a psychiatrist of considerable eminence denounce parents for letting the infant "cry it out," implying that this baby should be taken up when he cries lest he feel rejected.

Our own three children were allowed when very young to "cry it out" and they are sure now they did not feel rejected. They got lots of cuddling and more subtle show of affection at proper times. These children, all parents now themselves, (Continued on Page Seven)

LONDON—Secretary of State James C. Byrnes tells the UNO. The problems presented by the discovery of atomic energy and other forces capable of mass destruction cannot be solved by any one nation. They are the common responsibility of all nations.

NEW YORK—Bernard M. Baruch. We must show that our political and economic system which met the test of war so magnificently can be turned as effectively to the solution of the human problems in the return to peace.

NEW YORK—Lady Nancy Astor objects to having her picture taken. "George Bernard Shaw should be here. He deserves having his picture taken. But then, I never knew a man who didn't. No woman wants her picture taken after 50."

The State Police Say:

Looking through a mud-splattered windshield a driver gets a distorted picture of the road ahead. An approaching car with bright lights, or only one light, adds to the hazard and confusion, and the driver is hard put to accurately judge whether he is on his own side of the road. This hazard can be eliminated by keeping your windshield wiper in good working order and if the rubber wiping edge of the blade has deteriorated, replace it.

A well-known New York society woman came out of one of the offices and stepped into the hall also bound for the elevator.

Supervisors Are In Convention

Thirty-First Convention Sessions Being Held Today At Court House

Township supervisors and auditors of Lawrence county met today in the court house for the 31st annual convention of their association. The convention opened at ten thirty with President Samuel V. Badger and Secretary John W. Cox on the rostrum.

Sheriff Frank L. Coen was the first speaker and delivered the address of welcome. Sheriff Coen complimented the supervisors upon the improvement of rural highways in the past fifteen years and said he was confident they were striving to make them even better.

President's Address
President Samuel V. Badger then offered a prayer and delivered his annual address. The minutes were read, followed by brief addresses by County Commissioners Karl F. Rohrer, Joseph P. Travers and Earl R. Wimer. County Solicitor William McElwain, Jr., also spoke.

Roll call was held just before noon and committees appointed. This afternoon the convention will elect officers. Speakers listed for the afternoon session include H. A. Thompson, secretary of the state association, S. W. Jackson and H. O. Wheelock of the state highway department and Hon. W. Sharp Fulton, state grange master.

New York Police Believe Gang Responsible For 200 Apartment Robberies

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(INS)—Mrs. Irene Coone, 36-year-old "female fagin," along with seven other men and three women, is being held in $100,000 bail as the gang responsible for 200 apartment house robberies in Manhattan and the Bronx.

The arrests were made Thursday night in Mrs. Coone's apartment as the gang allegedly was quarreling over division of the loot.

The loot in question consisted of thousands of dollars worth of fur coats, clothing and jewelry.

"Fence" Escapes

Police were tipped off by an anonymous telephone call and followed a suspected "fence" to the apartment. Standing outside the door they heard loud and angry voices and immediately put in a call for reinforcements.

During the excitement of breaking down the door, the "fence" escaped.

Mrs. Coone and her 16-year-old daughter were arrested among others. Another 16-year-old girl also was arrested.

Half Million In Auto Industry May Be Idle Soon

DETROIT, Jan. 26.—(INS)—Industrial leaders predicted today that a half million automotive industry workers will be idle by February 1, as a result of strikes in automobile, steel and glass plants.

Of that total, at least 250,000 unemployed will come from the automotive and aviation parts manufacturing industry.

Frank Rising, general manager of the Automotive and Aviation Parts Manufacturing Association, said the entire industry faces a shutdown because of the crippling strikes.

The Chrysler Corporation blamed the glass shortage, although the strike in that field has been settled, as the reason for sending home 8,000 employees.

The corporation's Chrysler, Dodge and DeSoto production lines are stopped. Only Plymouth plants are building cars.

The Chrysler Corporation, however, appears most likely of the "big three" to reach an early agreement with the United Automobile Workers, CIO.

Re-Employment Of Veterans Needs Straightening Out

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(INS)—A House Military Affairs subcommittee decided today to look into the matter of re-employment preferences for veterans in the light of an adverse decision by a judge in Illinois.

The matter came before the group while it was considering a bill to extend veterans re-employment rights in the draft law after the May 15 expiration date of the statute.

Veterans Administrator Omar Bradley testified in favor of continuing that portion of the act.

Rep. May (D-Ky.), committee chairman, proposed that its legislative counsel "go into" the matter of assuring that returning veterans shall be replaced in their pre-war jobs.

He said the matter should be "straightened out" if it needs to be.

The federal judge ruled that a veteran had no legal right to be returned to his pre-war job if he would displace non-veteran with greater seniority in the company.

Plans Complete For Conference On January 31

Sunday school superintendents and others have been asked to send reservation slips in promptly for the conference-rally to be held at the First United Presbyterian church, Clemons boulevard, this city next Thursday, January 31, so that the ladies of the entertaining church will know the number to be served. The time for this fellowship chicken dinner will be 6:15 p. m.

Rev. Young G. Webster, director of the normal people's work of the State Sunday School Association, will be the chief conference-rally speaker and leader. The afternoon session starts at 2:15 with registration, after which there will be opening devotions, a discussion of the 8-weeks pre-Easter increase campaign, reports of departmental superintendents and district presidents, and a discussion of young people's work by Rev. Webster, who will also have charge of an open forum and discussion period.

Between the afternoon session and the dinner, there will be sound motion pictures shown, as well as views of Camp Kanesatake.

At the evening session, recognition will be given to the district having the best percentage of officers and departmental superintendents present, and substitutes will be allowed for those not able to attend. A free scholarship will also be awarded to Camp Kanesatake, the beautiful State Sunday School Association camp located near Spruce Creek not far from Huntingdon, Pa.

At this evening session there will also be special music, an inspirational message from Rev. Webster, and a "Friendship Circle".

Return Of Miners Far Reaching Step Declares Lewis

MOBILE, Ala., Jan. 26.—(INS)—John L. Lewis said today that re-affiliation of his United Mine Workers with the American Federation of Labor was "a step of major magnitude and far-reaching consequences to labor and the country."

Lewis stopped overnight in Mobile on one leg of "a tour of the south." The only amplification of his statement of the importance of UMW's re-affiliation was as follows: "One of the greatest tasks confronting labor in the United States is the unification of its policies and the more complete pooling of its strength with the attainment of its logical objectives and of the preservation of the liberties and privileges of all Americans."

Seek Evidence Of Foul Play

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 26.—(INS)—The body of Mrs. Mary Bentler, 53, was being examined today for evidence of foul play following the discovery of a seven-foot-old boy's body in a snow drift in a wooded section of Reserve township. The victim's purse and shoes were found near the body.

Police were at a loss to explain the movements of the woman who had been missing after visiting a movie Sunday afternoon.

THE PARENT PROBLEM

selves, have deliberately let their own babies "cry it out" in the early months when such patterns of control are most effective.

Grandchild Playing
While I am writing this, our youngest grandchild eight months old, the first child of his parents, sits or lies in the play pen before me, drumming happily with his feet or manipulating his toes, looking over at me now and then with his big dark eyes and captivating smiles.

This little type almost never cries. He just smiles and looks contented nearly all his waking hours. Clearly he never cries for attention. Four months ago when he was here for a few days he cried a great deal while awake, but always turned to smiles when one of his parents took him up or amused him otherwise. Later the parents decided to let him "cry it out."

Awful Ordeal
They write us: "It was an awful ordeal. For days he kept it up hours at a stretch but he finally adapted himself and is a very happy and contented baby now."

Some while ago, a school psychologist, trained as a social-psychiatric worker, told me that in most of the behavior cases she dealt with she advised the parents to restrain the child less at home. And in a community where home control is so lax.

The other day, I was lunching with two elementary school principals in another "choice" suburb. They poured out their worries over these undisciplined children from good homes. "We are not supposed to paddle them, not even to isolate them and have them sit alone in a chair as punishment. If an expert should drop in and see a youngster serving a chair-sentence we would be told he will feel rejected."

Don't we want the child to feel rejected at the time he is proving a nuisance to his fellows? How discouraging to teachers and parents deprived of the paddle, even of the "chair" for physical or psychological isolation? Fortunately most parents and teachers keep on hand a few grains of salt.

WASHINGTON REPORT

the "president's palace" didn't have its front stairs in place. The Adamses, John and Abigail, bore up wonderfully in this bleak atmosphere. Perhaps in the New England manner of their family they had already begun to speak only to the Cabots and Gods.

I think the Trumans, Harry and Bess, can bear up without those 5,000 square feet of floor space and that auditorium.

Held Perfect Now

To me the "president's palace" is perfect now. Actually it didn't begin to take on perfection until they stopped calling it the "president's palace" and named it the White House. This was not long after the British, invading Washington in the War of 1812, smashed the windows of the mansion and threw fire balls inside the rooms.

The White House is made up mostly of memories. You think of it as a composite of the people who have lived there. Floor space has nothing to do with its personality. It is a gracious home. Many a king and queen would give their crown jewels for a castle half as comfortable. President and Mrs. Truman have made its upstairs extra cozy. They've put a new coat of paint on its outer walls. The trees and the long green turf are being made ready for spring.

Even of the presidents of the United States have been dull fellows. If they have not been terrible in themselves, their families made their regimes slightly delicious in spots. For example James Madison was a bald, stooped little man with a squint. But Dolly was as spry as a Yellowstone Park geyser. (She used to give date parties, too, Mrs. Truman.) And generally did as she pleased as to how she would dress, including rouge and snuff.

Lately I've begun to take an interest in Millard Fillmore. He was the first president to take a bath in the White House. His predecessors used the wash bowl of the Potomac. President Fillmore was always nicely perfumed with Cornish oil of cream and concentrated extract of eucalyptus. The Monroes were the most fashionably stylish couple ever to inhabit the White House. And what a time Mrs. Monroe, who opened "the underbush" had making congress pay for her French furniture.

Again I say I like the finest "gentleman's house" as it is. Don't let's break about it and its traditions. Spend that $1,650,000 on sweeping out the back alleys. It will be money better invested.

HAM SANDWICH

It seems that our common food combinations have stood the test of time pretty well. They must be pretty good or they would not be such great favorites.

The ham sandwich is a pretty well balanced proposition. The ham provides protein, the butter provides fat and the bread provides starch. The vitamins are pretty well taken care of, too. If some carrot sticks are added, mustard greens or parsley are added, the sandwich is not pretty healthy everywhere. These greens are especially rich in vitamin A, which the body needs to keep in good condition.

MARINES

Why You Should Join the Marine Corps League

The only All-Marine Veterans Organization Chartered by an Act of Congress. Every person who has served in the armed forces of the United States should belong to some veterans organization, not only for the social contacts afforded, but for the opportunities that will be presented for organization of large strength to push legislation that will help our less fortunate comrades.

If you served in the United States Marine Corps, your place is in the Marine Corps League, the only All-Marine Veterans Organization of National scope.

Organized in 1923 and Incorporated by Act of Congress, The Marine Corps League has all the qualifications of every major veterans organization. Hundreds of new organizations will crop up from time to time, some will survive, others will fall by the wayside. Many will be just regimental or company organizations which will have for their highest ambitions yearly get-togethers.

IN PLANNING TO JOIN A VETERANS GROUP YOU SHOULD LOOK FOR THE FOLLOWING QUALIFICATIONS:

- 1—What are the purposes of the group?
- 2—Is it incorporated by Act of Congress?
- 3—Is it recognized by the Veterans Administration?
- 4—What has it accomplished?

(1)—The aims and purpose of the Marine Corps League show it to be non-Political, non-Sectarian and non-partisan organization, that has handed together to aid and assist wherever and whenever possible the men who served or are now serving in the United States Marine Corps, their Widows and Orphans; to perpetuate the history of the United States Marine Corps, and by fitting acts, to observe the anniversaries of historical occasions peculiar to the corps.

(2)—The Marine Corps League was incorporated by Act of Congress in August, 1937.

(3)—The Marine Corps League was recognized by the Veterans Administration under provision of Public No. 844, 74th Congress, by Brig. Gen. Frank Hines administrator in a letter dated April 5, 1945.

(4)—It is impossible to state in this small space the many accomplishments of the Marine Corps League during 23 years.

Each local detachment has a rehabilitation committee to assist returning Marines get settled and, if necessary, secure position for them. Thousands of dollars have been spent to supply recreational equipment for Marines at the Klamath Falls, Ore., recuperation center. WHAT THE CHURCH IS NOT!

"The church is not a house of merchandise, a bur-an of amusement or a social club." What would He (Christ) now say and do if He were to return and see the . . . vaudeville and film-flam of modern churches? "Infinitely better is it to worship in a BARN than in an edifice erected through sinners, tairs, theatrical shows and musical entertainments." Said an infidel to me. I think your God must be in great need of money, by the TRICKS the churches practice to get it for him. (Excerpts from booklet of above title, "What The Church Is Not," by E. P. Marvin.) Electricity From Atomic Energy Is Future Forecast

Chicago University Expert Sees Day Of Atomic Energy Used Commercially

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(INS)—R. G. Gustafson, University of Chicago chemistry professor, predicted today that the day of ships, submarines and trains driven by atomic power may not be far distant.

He told the senate special committee on atomic energy that it is physically possible to build within six months a dynamo to generate electricity from atomic energy.

Gustafson, President Robert M. Hutchins, Edward H. Levi, law professor, and Robert Redfield, social scientist, all of the Chicago faculty, were witnesses before the committee.

The chemist declared there are "strong probabilities" that atomic energy will be a commercial success. He said:

"The possibility of driving submarines, ocean-going vessels and even trains with atomic power is real. Smokeless cities may be a reality."

The three witnesses endorsed the McMahon bill for controlling atomic energy because it "subordinates the domestic development and use of atomic energy to international agreements—places atomic energy under civilian control and does not treat it as a weapon."

Hutchins criticized the security regulations of the Manhattan project during the war as "excessive even in wartime" and "detrimental to the project" and urged future secrecy requirements be reduced to a minimum.

He predicted the trend would continue with the West and South-east continuing to gain largely at the expense of the North and North-east.

In a booklet published by the J. Walter Thompson company, Dr. Reed listed the following cities as "examples of regions most apt to retain their wartime growth and continue to grow":

Corpus Christi, Texas; Dallas, Texas; Jackson, Miss.; Jacksonville, Fla.; San Antonio, Texas; San Diego, Calif.; Detroit, Mich.; Los Angeles, Calif.; New Orleans, La.; Charleston, S. C.; Columbia, S. C.; Columbus, Ga.; Mobile, Ala.; Galveston, Texas; Atlanta, Ga. and San Francisco, Calif.

He forecast that Baltimore, Md. and Indianapolis, Ind., had "good chances" of retaining their wartime populations and added that it was "hard to predict" about Cleveland.

Population Shift To Southeastern, Western Areas

Mass Wartime Migration Of Workers Follows Pattern, Census Head Says

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(INS)—The wartime population shift toward the western and southeastern states marks this country's emergence from the "melting pot" stage, Dr. Virgil D. Reed, former acting director of the Census bureau said today.

Mass wartime migration of workers to West Coast war plant areas followed a pattern already established during the "Grapes of Wrath" period of 1930 and before the war plants existed, Dr. Reed said.

He predicted the trend would continue with the West and South-east continuing to gain largely at the expense of the North and North-east.

In a booklet published by the J. Walter Thompson company, Dr. Reed listed the following cities as "examples of regions most apt to retain their wartime growth and continue to grow":

Corpus Christi, Texas; Dallas, Texas; Jackson, Miss.; Jacksonville, Fla.; San Antonio, Texas; San Diego, Calif.; Detroit, Mich.; Los Angeles, Calif.; New Orleans, La.; Charleston, S. C.; Columbia, S. C.; Columbus, Ga.; Mobile, Ala.; Galveston, Texas; Atlanta, Ga. and San Francisco, Calif.

He forecast that Baltimore, Md. and Indianapolis, Ind., had "good chances" of retaining their wartime populations and added that it was "hard to predict" about Cleveland.

Radar Technician Doubts More Contact With Outer Planets

Franklin Institute Director Says Radar Beam Is Too Wide To Do Mapping

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 26.—(INS)—Dr. Roy K. Marshall, director of Franklin Institute, expressed doubt today that the army's successful radar contact with the moon would be of immediate help in obtaining detailed maps of the distant planets.

"The radar beam, to my knowledge," explained Dr. Marshall, "is about half a degree wide and such a beam would cover the entire moon. You'd need a beam about one-tenth thousandth of a degree in order to map small portions of the moon's surface."

Mapping the planet Venus, which is 100 times farther than the moon, would be even more difficult and would require an even narrower radar beam, Dr. Marshall pointed out.

Is Enthusiastic The Franklin institute head was enthusiastic, however, about the fact that radar beams had for the first time penetrated the heaviest layer, a belt of ionized air, about 65 to 100 miles from the earth.

"By means of radar," Dr. Marshall said, "scientists can now determine more accurately the nature and activities of the heaviest layer. Ordinary radio beams bounce off this layer."

Since all long distance communication eventually will be by short-wave radio, it's important that we know everything possible about the heaviest layer, he explained.

Dr. Marshall also thought that the new radar accomplishment would be extremely useful in guiding possible projectiles to the moon.

"First though, you'd have to shoot the rocket to within 2,000 miles of the moon and that's darn good shooting," he said. "Then the moon's gravity would operate on the projectile. If the rockets were guided by radar, its passage from the earth would be much easier."

Radar Contact With Moon Opens Vast New Field

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 26.—(INS)—Man, who lives at the bottom of an ocean of air, has reached above the surface and established the first human contact with another heavenly body.

The radar beam that bounced off the moon and returned to tell its story to the army scientists has broken one of the links in the bondage of earth-bound humanity.

Dr. C. H. Clemenshaw, acting director of the Griffith Observatory said:

"Now, who of us in astronomy, can tell what limits we must put to our future research?"

"The vista this opens up to us is staggering to the imagination, but it also is staggering to the scientific planner."

"Long have we hoped to get better pictures of the moon's surface, for that is our nearest neighbor in space, our constant companion, which accompanies us around the earth at an average distance of about 238,000 miles. The fuzziness that is caused on photographs by the air interferes with real close-ups of the moon using light waves. Perhaps radar waves, with greater penetrating and defining power will disclose unheard of facts about the dead and airless moon."

The little "Miracle Baby" has been in and out of the hospital so many times that she knows all the staff and receives more professional visitors than a patient a dozen times her age.

Nancy's parents laugh about her many visits now, but they have had their hours of worry.

Airmail Delivery To Troops Slowed

Rapid Demobilization Leaves Air Force Without Proper Maintenance, Mails Slowed

TOKYO, Jan. 26. — (INS) — An Army survey showed today that the rapid demobilization of occupation forces in Japan is hitting the soldiers where it hurts—in slowing the delivery of mail to and from occupied areas.

The survey indicated that because of a shortage of air force ground and maintenance crews, only one plane a day is now carrying incoming and outgoing mail for approximately 300,000 troops.

As a result, the bulk of mail in air mail envelopes is being sent by ship with delivery time running as high as 30 days in some cases.

Only one out of every four air mail letters is delivered by plane.

Bitter Controversy Over Steel Strike Threat In Chicago

Steel Company Charges Huge Damage Caused At Mill At Joliet, Illinois

CHICAGO, Jan. 26.—(INS)—The nationwide steel strike threatened to explode into a bitter controversy in the Chicago area today between the CIO and the Carnegie-Illinois Steel company.

Spokesmen for the company, a subsidiary of U. S. Steel, charged that the action of the CIO pickets in barring maintenance men from the Carnegie-Illinois mill at Joliet had ruined between $16,000,000 and $20,000,000 worth of equipment.

Joe Germano, Chicago district leader of the CIO's United Steel Workers Union, denied the charges. He said nothing had been damaged by any union action.

Threat At Gary
Trouble also threatened to develop at nearby Gary, Ind., works of Carnegie-Illinois, the largest steel mill in the world.

Superintendents of the Gary plant who had been living inside the mill since the strike started, made a formal written request for police protection to Mayor Joe Finerty of Gary and Sheriff Fred Stults of Lake county.

They asked for free entry and exit from the mill for all superintendents, supervisory workers and maintenance men. They also insisted that those employees should be allowed in and out of the plant without union passes.

The union was expected to bitterly oppose any such move.

PRODUCTION OUTLOOK AT A GLANCE

Tire manufacturers have been unable to fill the great need for new passenger car tires. In case we do not have the right size tire for your car, we should be able to get it soon. Come in for full information.

HERE'S WHY you'll want the
B. F. Goodrich Silvertown

OUTWEARS PREWAR TIRES!

It has been proved. More than 2,000 tests and nearly 17,000,000 miles of the toughest kind of road service showed that this new B. F. Goodrich Silvertown will outwear Prewar natural rubber tires.

New, better rubber. B. F. Goodrich has developed a rubber that's far better than ordinary synthetics. It helps the new Silvertown wear better and run cooler. It has greater resistance to cracking — and actually stands bruising and damage from accidents better.

Tire body 35% stronger. An entirely new, stronger cord is used, more of these cords are used in the top ply, an extra shock-absorbing breaker strip is included. The result: a body that is 35% stronger for additional resistance to bruises, extra blowout protection.

Flatter tread covers more ground. Called the "road level" tread, it puts more rubber on the road, permits all the tread to share the wear. Result: a further increase in mileage, less scuffing, better distribution of weight, better traction, more safety on the turns.

Plus 3 years' EXTRA experience. Three years before any other manufacturer, B. F. Goodrich sold tires containing synthetic rubber to American car owners. The extra know-how piled up in these three years is reflected in the new B. F. Goodrich Silvertown.

Men Still Sought For Work On Farms

Several attractive jobs on Lawrence County Dairy Farms are to be had. The Farm Labor Office here reports.

POST WAR HIGHWAYS RATE HIGH AS "MUST"

In the new world facing us the changes will be rapid and exciting. Plastics, atomic energy, new wonder drugs, these and untold thousands of others are just around the corner.

But the new world, like the old, will be powered by motors. Traffic will increase once the new cars and trucks are in production. Hence post-war highways are "musts" if we intend to move with the speed of the times. The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania is unfolding plans for new highways that will some day put Pennsylvania at the top of the list of states.

Locally our officials are aware of the need for traffic relief, modern highways in and out and through the city. It is a good sign. The Lawrence County chapter PMTA congratulates both the state and local officials for their forward looking attitude in this most important subject.

LEGAL NOTICES

Legal Notice

IN RE: PETITION OF MARION W. ARMSTRONG FOR THE SATISFACTION OF A MORTGAGE OF THE TRINITY CHURCH OF NEW CASTLE, PENNSYLVANIA, TO JOHN H. SHOENBERGER, DAVID M. COURTNEY AND B. H. HENDERSON.

TO: John H. Shoenberger, David M. Courtney and B. H. Henderson, or their heirs at law, or the holder or holders of the hereinafter mentioned mortgage.

Take notice that Marion W. Armstrong on the 27th day of December, 1945, presented for petition to the Court of Common Pleas of Lawrence County, Pennsylvania, setting forth that she and other persons for whom she was acting are the owners of a certain lot of land in the First Ward of the City of New Castle, formerly the Borough of New Castle, Lawrence County, Pennsylvania, known as Lot No. 1 in the plan of said Borough of New Castle, bounded on the North by an alley on the East by Jefferson Street on the South by the Diamond and on the West by land formerly of William Patterson, now of A. C. Hoy.

That a predecessor in title to said lands, The Trinity Church of New Castle, Pennsylvania, while the owners thereof, from November 27, 1861, made, executed and delivered to John H. Shoenberger, David M. Courtney and B. H. Henderson its certain mortgage covering the above said described lands to secure the payment of certain bonds in the sum of fifteen hundred ($1500.00) dollars, which said mortgage remains unsatisfied of record.

That the due date of said mortgage was November 27, 1940, and more than twenty (20) years have elapsed since said due date, there is a legal presumption of the payment of said mortgage.

That the petitioners are unable to find the mortgagee or its successors, assignees or assigns, and that no demand for payment of principal and interest on said mortgage has been made to you, petitioner or any other person, and the petitioner prayed a Decree of Court directly satisfying the debt secured by said mortgage, and that the court should direct the satisfaction of said mortgage by the Recorder for the County of Lawrence on the payment of the costs due relative to the entry of said mortgage of any proceedings thereon, which said satisfaction so entered shall forever thereafter discharge, defeat and release the same, and shall likewise bar all actions brought or to be brought thereon, fully and effectually to all intents and purposes, and if the satisfaction had been entered by the legal holder or holders of said mortgage.

Whereupon said Court decreed that this notice shall be published in a legal newspaper of general circulation, requiring all parties interested to appear and make answer, if any they have, why said mortgage be not satisfied of record.

Rule returnable to First Monday of March, A. D. 1946.

CLYDE D. BADGER, Sheriff of Lawrence County.

Mont L. Alley, Attorney for Petitioner.

MARKET TODAY
QUIET AFFAIR

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(INS)—Stocks put in a quiet session today with most price changes fractional and with little regularity to the list's movements.

Industrials were generally higher. Rails were easy and utilities just didn't move.

Paramount, one of yesterday's strong favorites, had a gain of 1/4 point to 64 1/2 and Eastman Kodak jumped a point to 238 1/2 at the opening, but otherwise there was little significance to quotations.

Bonds were quiet and curb prices were mixed.

Tells Congress
W.L.B. Promised Postwar Boosts

WASHINGTON, Jan. 26.—(INS)—Walter Reuther, leader of the United Auto Workers' strike against General Motors, told congress today that the now-defunct war labor board repeatedly promised labor higher wages when peace came.

Reuther made this statement as he began his testimony before the senate labor committee on President Truman's recommended fact-finding bill.

The CIO leader declared that his union attempted to follow the government's labor policy.

Dr. Stoyan Gavrilovic, chairman of the UNO group, said a letter has been received from the Hyde Park sponsoring committee offering 25 square miles on the Hyde Park side and as much more as is needed on the west bank of the river south of Kingston.

He suggested a UNO-financed bridge connecting the two areas might be constructed.

Penn has banned the exportation of work horses which can be used in industry, agriculture or in army service.

The public relations office at Carlisle barracks reported that former Pfc. Norman Conway of Canonsburg was recently awarded the purple heart with four oak leaf clusters for wounds suffered in Normandy. Conway was captured June 6, 1944, and liberated last May. He was discharged at Carlisle barracks a short time ago.

NEW PROPOSAL
FOR U.N.O. CENTER

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(INS)—The UNO inspection group will send a subcommittee to Kingston and Hyde Park Monday to study a new proposal for an international settlement on both sides of the Hudson river.

Dr. Shushi Hsu of China and Don Julio A. Lacarte of Uruguay will represent the UNO in the negotiations.

Dr. Stoyan Gavrilovic, chairman of the UNO group, said a letter has been received from the Hyde Park sponsoring committee offering 25 square miles on the Hyde Park side and as much more as is needed on the west bank of the river south of Kingston.

Clothing Drive In Final Stages But Under Quota

Officials Claim Drive Is 33,000 Articles Short Of Goal Set In County

Victory Clothing collections are about over. The last day will be January 31. We hope that we have given everyone an idea of what has been going on and also an opportunity to give something to the drive. If you haven't made a donation and plan to do so, get it ready now for the time is short.

Statistics on Drive
The public may wish to know just what has been accomplished so far in the drive.

All material received up to Thursday, Jan. 24, has been boxed and shipped. This shipment included the following:

There were 478 boxes of clothing containing 50,058 pieces of wearing apparel, and 121 bags of shoes containing 3,954 pairs of footwear. This information stated in another way means that we dispatched 21,824 pounds of clothing and 4,335 pounds of shoes.

In order to reach the goal set for Lawrence county we must receive 33,000 additional pieces of wearing apparel before January 31. Reaching this quota is not the important thing. The thought uppermost in our minds is to furnish clothing, in so far as it is in our power, to the hungry, destitute and ill clothed peoples of the earth.

All of us who have worked this month for the collection have had this thought in mind, and we know that the people of the county have thought likewise, judging from the way they have given to the drive.

Rural Deliveries

Mr. Roy Conway, who has the supervision of the collections in the county—outside of the City of New Castle—reports that all accumulated clothing from the different school buildings was delivered to the headquarters, Friday, Jan. 25. Men of the Wolves' club will report in the evenings next week to get this shipment ready. One carload of clothing from the drive has been sent to Trenton, N. J., where it will be prepared for shipment overseas.

To date, January 26, all packed boxes have been cleared out of the headquarters in this shipment. It is hoped that enough additional equipment will be received to fill another car.

We thank the people of Lawrence county for the interest they have taken in this great humanitarian effort.

In another case, Jacob Rink Jr., was fined $25 when he pleaded guilty to tearing down an honor roll in the town square at Bunola.

HARLANSBURG

January 27, the Baptist church will hear a candidate for the work here.

Rev. Claude Kummer of Brinsford, Pa., will preach morning and evening.

Rev. Grant Fisher, D. D., of New Castle, will preach in the Presbyterian church next Sunday morning, Jan. 27.

Miss Ed Dillon is visiting friends in Beaver Falls for a few days.

JEWELS ARE STOLEN FROM MARTHA RAYE

NEW YORK, Jan. 26.—(INS)—A definite suspect was sought today as the thief blamed for four recent gem burglaries meeting a total swag of $80,000, including $15,000 worth from comedienne Martha Raye.

The suspect was identified by a woman alleged to have been discovered wearing some of the stolen baubles in a night club.

Evening Classes For Veterans At Senior High Now

Classes for veterans to make up their high school credits as quickly as possible are now in operation for history and English, meeting on Tuesday and Thursday evenings from 7:30 until 9:30, according to School Superintendent Frank L. Burton.

The ex-servicemen may complete the courses as fast as they are able, taking examinations as soon as they are ready for them and receiving their diplomas as soon as they have all of their credits.

No charge or deposit of any kind is required of the veterans, and the enrollment is open at all times. The courses are being continued indefinitely to take care of as many men as possible, with other courses being planned as soon as there is a demand for them.

Arthur C. Brown, history teacher at Senior High school, is the instructor for both the history and English classes at present.

Due to the fact that a record was not kept of all the club members who entered the service, the secretary, Walter Dudek, announces that those members who served and want their names on the roll can register at the club rooms at their convenience, so that no name will be omitted from the plaque.

FORTIFIED RED SQUILL EFFECTIVE IN RAT CONTROL

Fortified Red Squill is now available again, and is proving the best medium for winter rat control. Many farmers have complained that rats seem more numerous this year than for several years, emphasizing the importance of spreading poison bait at this time.

Use of canned fish or cheap hamburger meat, properly mixed with the new fortified red squill is giving excellent results in killing the rodents, farmers have reported after using this system. Poison bait should be spread in those sections of the farm where rats have been seen, under low buildings, in runways, and where the bait will be most quickly taken.

A circular with suggestions on mixing rat baits may be secured without charge at the Agricultural Extension Office, 206 Post Office building, New Castle.
